

WABASH DIFFERENCES AMICABLY ADJUSTED.

Trainmen and Firemen Reach Agreement With Officials After Series of Conferences.

MANY CONCESSIONS GRANTED.

Practically All Demands Made by Committees to President Ramsey Allowed and Employees Are Satisfied.

After three months' contention in the courts and in conference the trouble between the Wabash Railroad Company and the trainmen and firemen was settled finally and satisfactorily to both sides yesterday at 7:30 p. m.

Practically all the demands made by the committees as compromise offers during the conference with President Ramsey were conceded, and while the officials of the committees made several concessions, it is stated that the terms of the agreement are highly satisfactory to the employees.

After frequent conferences between Colonel Wells H. Blodgett, vice president and chief counsel for the Wabash, and Frederick N. Judson, counsel for the trainmen, in which all the points at issue were carefully gone over and discussed, both with the members of the committee and Mr. Ashley, an understanding was finally arrived at on the most important questions.

Couched in the form of a letter to Colonel Blodgett, Mr. Ashley revised these points upon which an understanding had been reached and stated that they were acceptable to the company.

This letter Mr. Blodgett inclosed to Mr. Judson, who in turn submitted it to his clients.

A meeting was held late yesterday afternoon between the members of the committees—Messrs. Lee, Hannahan and Judson and Messrs. Ashley, Blodgett, Magee and Travis—in Mr. Ashley's office. It was verbally stated that the trainmen and employees of the road were satisfied with the terms as accepted by Mr. Ashley.

Following is the substance of Mr. Ashley's letter:

SCHEDULE GRANTED.

The advance allowed on the St. Louis line of 12 and 15 per cent will be allowed west of the river for conductors and brakemen.

The advance to be allowed over the schedule in effect January 1, 1902, this schedule to be extended to middle and western divisions when similar advances are made on competing lines in the territory, it being understood that the Illinois Central and Chicago and Alton shall be considered competing lines. Double-header shall be discontinued west of the river except in cases of necessity.

The president upon his return, or the management, shall confer with the employees individually or in a committee when desired.

The schedule of wages shall not be changed without thirty days' notice.

Firemen on the Buffalo division will be paid the same rate as on the Canada division in the same territory. If there is no agreement with the Grand Trunk which provides no double-header, the schedule of wages shall not be changed.

STATEMENT OF TRAINMEN.

Chairmen of the committees and officials of the firemen's and trainmen's organizations received the following statement last night after the conference:

In the final settlement of the wage controversy with the Wabash Railroad, there is a spirit of fairness was displayed by Mr. Ashley, president of the Wabash, who has shown a willingness to meet the demands of the trainmen and firemen, and in fact, all parties concerned, to entirely forget and forgive the past.

Too much credit cannot be given Colonel Blodgett and Mr. Ashley, who have shown a willingness to meet the demands of the trainmen and firemen, and in fact, all parties concerned, to entirely forget and forgive the past.

The settlement is entirely satisfactory to all, and the committee will return to their former positions in the service after being consulted as to the many matters which have been settled, and respect for their employment, and especially for Mr. Ashley, Mr. Blodgett, Mr. Travis and Mr. Judson, with whom final settlement was made.

The committee feel they were justified in asking for the same compensation and working conditions as the employees of other lines in competitive territory. Nothing more was demanded at any time.

We have tried, in handling this controversy, to demonstrate by our actions to the business and labor world, that members of organized labor are law-abiding, peace-loving citizens, and leave our action in this controversy, and our best friends are organizations of the hands of the public for approval or criticism.

Chairman Trainmen's General Grievance Committee.

ASHLEY IS SATISFIED.

"We are very well satisfied with the settlement," said H. W. Ashley, assistant to President Ramsey, yesterday evening.

"I have been given to understand that the employees are well satisfied and we will have no more labor troubles. For our part except for a few small things, which we allowed, we are satisfied and believe that the present outcome is the best possible."

Colonel Blodgett and I thought we could gratify this matter all right, said Mr. Judson, "and I believe we have done it. It was a long struggle, but throughout the conference, the spirit of having secured a settlement without resorting to force was never forgotten and finally we got through, I believe satisfactory to both sides."

Mr. Judson and myself went over the ground most carefully," said Mr. Blodgett, "we believe that we have reached the best possible settlement of the points at issue, and I am perfectly content with the result."

Mr. R. Lee of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen will depart this morning for Denver, Colo. Mr. Lee expressed himself as delighted with the result of the trouble.

Mr. Hannahan of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, also expressed pleasure at the result. He will depart to-day for Chicago.

SIoux BRAVES PERFORMING WAR DANCE FOR VISITORS TO THE CIRCUS QUARTERS.

The Sioux Indians at the Forepaugh Ranch going through the movements of a war dance that was most peaceful.

The troupe of Sioux Indians now quartered on the Forepaugh Ranch at College View, who are to be one of the leading attractions in the coming Lucile Forepaugh-Fish Wild West Show, attract throngs of visitors to their temporary village in the suburbs of this city.

Besides being a supremely lazy lot of individuals, these dusky warriors are also a very happy lot, as may be inferred from their laughing faces in the photograph. In the picture they are supposed to be going through the different movements of the famous "war dance."

Chief Willie Bear Shield, who is the only member of the troupe who has attended the Carlisle School, and consequently, the only one of their number who can speak English fluently, was asked by one of the cowboys to have the Indians perform the war dance for the amusement of the visitors.

The Chief confided to his fellow-braves what was wanted of them, and immediately a rush was made for the tepees, for the "making-up" process. Indians are notoriously vain, and those at the Forepaugh Ranch are by no means an exception to the rule. With a generous and a bounteous hand the paint is applied in thick and lurid layers.

Some of the redskins are exponents of the single-color scheme, while others again delight in a battered facial adornment whose color range includes the seven elements of the solar spectrum, with an added intermingling of many wonderful combinations, making an effect bewilderingly ludicrous.

A sturdy feathered headdress completed the make-up for most of the red-skinned warriors. Then forth they sallied from their tepees, to do fictitious honor to the Great Spirit in festive song and dance. The squaws with their saposoon stood in the background, and kept crouching forth a most mournful dirge, while the valiant warriors pranced in a circle about one of their number, Charging Thunder, who made a heroic attempt to sound some sort of a musical sound out of a worn-out frying pan, which questionable musical instrument was used in lieu of an Indian kettle drum.

Though the prancing Indians were supposed to be showing the visitors with what prowess, consummate skill and dash, forth they would vanquish their imaginary foe, whether white or red, in the dreadful hand-to-hand encounter. The realization that the man with the black bow was again in their midst and was taking their pictures was ever present to them, and the usual amusement that this fact caused them prevented, in a great measure, their attempts at depicting Indian ferocity and cruelty from being more realistic.

The throng of visitors who, during the past week, have taken advantage of this

DIED IN ITS MOTHER'S ARMS.

Immigrant's Child a Corpse in Station at Chicago.

Chicago, April 4.—While waiting for a train in the Grand Central Station here to-day the 8-year-old child of Mrs. John Langford died in its mother's arms. Mr. and Mrs. Langford are immigrants on their way to Lincoln, Neb.

The mother had been walking through the station singing softly to the child. "Here, John," she said, "Charles is asleep. You hold him while I get a bit of rest."

The father noted the pined face of the little one, and without replying, ran from the station, returning a few minutes later after a vain search for a physician.

"Charles is dead," he announced, quietly. The weeping mother held the lifeless body to her breast until the police came and removed it to an undertaking establishment.
